

I'm shocked to read that there is consideration of relaxing cross-ownership rules between TV stations and newspapers within a local market.

Business interests should not out way the interests of the public. The US government should ensure that the press does not become self-serving to bussiness interests and needs. This is already evident within TV broadcasts themselves. To allow a newspaper to the fold would allow a greater reach of that bussiness's intrests and not increase service to the public.

Sincerly,

Thomas Pawlowski